

Michael Schlachter MD is a board-certified pulmonary physician in private practice in Las Vegas, Nevada and is co-founder of a medical device company for oxygen delivery via a unique oxygen mask. Dr. Schlachter's training in Pulmonary Disease started in 1981 with the US Army with cross training with world renowned physicians at both Denver General Hospital and National Jewish Hospital in Denver Colorado. After severing 3 years in the US Army Medical Corps in Frankfurt West Germany and 1 year at Fitzsimons Army Medical Center in Denver, he entered private practice 1987 in Las Vegas, Nevada. In 2012 Dr Schlachter joined forces with a veteran respiratory therapist, Offord Rollins. III and developed a revolutionary oxygen mask that replaces 5 different oxygen masks on the market helping to bring oxygen therapy into the 21st century in both efficiency and safety. He presently is the medical director of the medical device company and additionally has an active medical practice in pulmonary disease.